Guidelines For Round-2 Counselling -Combined Allied Counselling-2026-27

1) Who can participate in Round-2?
   Ans- Anyone in the Merit List can participate in Round-2 Choice Locking, irrespective of their admission status in Round-1
2) I have allotted in Round-1 but not taken admission as my preference of Course / Institute / Category was not allotted to me. Can I participate in Round-2?
   Ans- Yes, you can exercise and lock your choices of preference of Course/Institutes/categories in Round-2
3) I have already admitted in Round-1 but the admitted Course / Institute / Category against which I have taken admission is not of my interest and I want to change. Can I participate in Round-2?
   Ans- Yes, you can exercise and lock your choices of preference of Course/Institutes/categories in Round-2, but you should give better preference of Course/Institutes/category than the present admitted one.
4) I have not participated in Round-1. Can I participate in Round-2?
   Ans- Yes, you can exercise and lock your choices of preference of Course/Institutes/categories in Round-2
5) I have participated in Round-1. And filled choices. But I did not get any allotment in Round-1. Can I participate in Round-2?
   Ans- Yes, you can exercise and lock your choices of preference of Course/Institutes/categories in Round-2
6) Suppose, I had taken admission in Round-1 and again filled choices in Round-2 and got allotment in Round-2. Is it compulsory to take admission in Round-2?
   Ans- No, though it is not mandatory to take admission in Round-2 if you got allotment, but you are advised to take admission, else, the nit admitted seat will be remain vacant and will go to 3rd Round and some other candidates will get barred to get allotment in Round-2 and to wait till Round-3.
7) If I had taken admission in Round-1 and filled Choices in Round-2 and got allotment in Round-2. If I will take admission again in Round-2, then what will be the status of Round-1 admission?
   Ans- If you have already taken admission in Round-1 and Participated in Round-2 again by filling and locking choices and also got allotment in Round-2 and admitted in Round-2, then automatically your 1st round admitted seat will get vacated and will be reflected in Round-3. And in such cases, your Round-2 admission will stay intact.
   But, if you will not take admission in Round-2, in spite of allotment in Round-2 and have taken admission previously in Round-1, then, your Round-1 admission will stay intact. And the Round-2 allotted seat will remain vacant and will go to Round-3.
8) What is the general procedure of Round-3?
   Ans- Any one in the merit list have the option to participate in Round-2. Candidates desirous of participating in Round-2 are advised to select the choices from the present available seats as shown in Round-2 seat matrix. While selecting the choices, it is advised to fill better choices, preferably, selection may be done accordingly keeping in consideration to college status like

Govt. or Private, preference of Courses in which they are interested and category they belong to. If at any case, the candidate is having preference of Govt. institute first, then he/she is advised to select the Govt. Institute in preference of priority and then Private institutes. So, in such cases, the allotment will be done in Govt. institutes having preference over the private ones (if the preferences of choices are given like that), else, if seats are not available at his/her turn, then only the Private Institutions may be allotted, subject to available of Seats.
If the candidate will fill the choices of Private Institutions over the Govt. then, subject to availability of seats, Private Institutions may be allotted.